To Whom It May Concern:

Safder Bouk spent two months in my laboratory doing a research internship in the Summer of 2001. During this time he learned about web-based computing. Specifically, he developed software for remote execution on the World Wide Web.

Safder is an enthusiastic person who is eager to learn. His experience here will serve him well in the field of education. I recommend him for the position at your institution.

Sincerely,

Gul Agha
Professor
